KAUAI CANNERIES REPRESENTATIVES TO GATHER HERE

Representatives of the California Canneries Company will be in Honolulu within a month when steps will be taken to carry out the project contemplated by the Hawaiian Canneries Company for a pineapple cannery on Kauai.

Albert Horner of the latter company, in which the California concern is interested, stated this morning that these representatives would arrive here shortly, and that they would at once take up the Kauai cannery enterprise to develop the pineapple industry at Kapaa.

Mr. Horner stated that the home-steaders had put in about 50 acres of pine and the company about 80, and that the pines were in good shape.

S. OKABE MAY BE JAPANESE CONSUL HERE

That S. Okabe, former acting Japanese consul in Honolulu, will become consul-general for Japan in Hawaii, is the report that has obtained much credence during the past few days and was stated to be a fact this morning. Mr. Okabe was expected as a passenger on the Shinyo Maru from San Francisco and is said to be going out to the Orient to make an official visit to Tokyo, from which he is expected to return to Hawaii as consul, succeeding Mr. Elitaki.

Mr. Okabe has been second secretary of the Japanese legation at Washington. He was acting consul here seven or eight years ago and was well liked.

GLORY PARIS PUT ONE OVER ON W. W. THAYER

"Many a good story has been spoiled by too much investigation."—A Reporter's Proverb.

Poor little Glory Paris! Her tears flowed so fluently, her voice quavered and broke so naturally and her narrative was told so realistically, punctuated with details—was it any wonder Attorney-general Thayer's generous sympathies were aroused? Nineteen years old and the mother of four children! A husband "jobbed" and jailed on a false charge, unrelenting parents who refused to help her! It was enough to stir the heart of a graven image.

But now come Sheriff William Henry Rice and Circuit Judge Lyle A. Dickey, of Kauai, who handled the case and caused John Paris' incarceration at Oahu prison for horse stealing, and they brand the forlorn little girl a colossal fabric! They aver she has no children, that her parents have not and do not refuse to keep her, and that John Paris is a notable, questionable character of Koloa, Kauai, whose pardon and release from jail would be, they declare, a direct miscarriage of justice.

Though Glory Paris enlisted the sympathy of the attorney-general when she dramatically recited her tale of woe to him last Monday morning, that official took the usual precaution to investigate the affair thoroughly before seeking to obtain the husband's release. He at once wrote Judge Dickey and Sheriff Rice, who had to do directly with the case, telling them the story as it was told him by the wire. He received their answers this morning, giving the history of the entire matter and strongly recommending that the only steps taken should be to send the girl back to her family on that island. This undoubtedly will be done—and the chapter will end there, so far as the territorial officials are concerned.

But it will be several days before the attorney-general forgets the vivid picture of a David Belasco "mellodrammer" in real life which Glory Paris painted for his imagination. Required to give details, she was equal to the job. She even gave the names, ages and sex of the four little

SELLS OWN DOG; DOESN'T KNOW IT—ADVISED

Failure upon the part of Peter Sanders to become better acquainted with his dog resulted in a train of troubles that finally landed Peter in the depths of limbo at the central police station.

The canine that for some months has haunted the Sanders abode, strayed from the family rooftop yesterday. Peter is alleged by the police to have attempted the larceny of his own dog, judging from the information imparted to the officers by a young woman who called at the station and succeeded in settling the matter to the satisfaction of all concerned.

Peter's story as related to a crowd of unsympathetic officers was that in proceeding towards town yesterday afternoon a dog that appealed to his sense of the esthetic, trailed his footsteps. Meeting a friend he negotiated a sale of the puppy, not realizing that the animal was a pet of his household. It was when Mrs. Sanders took to the warpath that Peter was brought to a realization that he had erred in bestowing his property upon another. The dog has been returned and peace again reigns.

children whose care weighed her shoulders so heavily.

Sheriff William Henry Rice's reply to the attorney-general's query says:

"Upon receipt of your letter requesting the facts regarding Mrs. Gloria Paris I went to Koloa this morning to see her mother, Mrs. Gloria Paris, the wife of John Paris, convicted of horse stealing, has no children, so her mother tells me. I went and saw Mrs. Medeiros, the mother of Mrs. Paris, and she told me that the girl went to live with them after John Paris had been sent to Oahu prison and was welcome to stay with her parents; but that John had written for her to go to Honolulu so that he could visit with her on Sundays. Mrs. Medeiros says the daughter will be welcomed at any time that she wishes to return to her parents' home. After John Paris left on the steamer for prison I made arrangements to have her transported from Nawiliwili to Koloa to her parents' home, as they said they would be glad to receive her, if John Paris did not come with her. They were married in March, 1911, so there is not much chance of her having four children.

"John Paris has been convicted of assault and battery in the district court of Koloa. He bears a bad reputation in his district and has been suspected of cattle and horse stealing before; but not enough evidence to convict him. He has not been able to find steady work as he had a bad reputation for sobriety and industry and would not work when he had a job.

"He was convicted last November of stealing a horse belonging to C. B. Morse. He took the horse to Honolulu and I sent an officer after him and the horse. He had tried to sell the horse to Officer Spiller and so Sheriff Jarrett was able to assist my officer in a quick recovery of the animal and the arrest of Paris.

"John Paris had a fair trial and was convicted, and if executive clemency was extended to him it would be a miscarriage of justice as it would not be long before he would be up to his old tricks again.

"Mrs. Gloria Paris is better off with her parents than with her husband. She is more or less simple-minded and does not know the difference between truth and falsehood. You will find that she has lied to you about the four children.

"I trust that Mrs. Paris will be sent home to her parents, as they can best look after her and the child which is about to arrive."

Judge Lyle A. Dickey corroborates Sheriff Rice's story and further tends to refute her realistic narrative by explaining something of the husband's parentage and record. He says:

"John Paris has a Guam father and a Hawaiian mother. He has been convicted three times in Koloa district court for assault and battery but has no other convictions against him for larceny so far as I could find out, though he has borne a bad reputation for some years and is generally believed in his neighborhood to be a thief.

"At the time of the trial Mrs. Paris had no children. The four you speak of must have been adopted since her husband's conviction. She was married May 29, 1911, and her age is given as 15 in her marriage record. At the time of her husband's conviction both her husband's parents and her own were willing to care for her. They are more able to care for her than was her husband, so she is not an object of charity. It is possible of course that she has since quarreled with her parents and been cast out, but it is far more probable that she has gone to Honolulu of her own accord to see her husband."

An invitation from the Hilo Bar Association is to be extended to United States District Attorney Jeff McCarn to be the guest of honor at the association's first annual dinner. The date for this dinner has not been set, it being left open that McCarn may decide upon a time convenient to him.
